IRISH FAMILY NAMES.

Changes by Which "Mac's" and "O's" Have Become Lost.

The Transition of Patronymics from Ancient Irish into the Present English.

The Original of Murphy, Connelly and Other Common Names.

Family names or hereditary surnames first became fixed in Ireland in the reign of Brian Borumha, between the years 1002 and 1014. For a long time, says the Irish Times, it was a popular error that the prefix "O" to a name signified that the bearer was of royal descent, while a Mac had no special significance of high social standing. This error has been exploded by showing that several Kings in Ireland have borne the prefix of Mac to their names, while some of the lowest and most obscure families bore the prefix "O." When surnames first became hereditary some families went back several generations to select an illustrious ancestor from whom to take a name. Mac signifies son, like the Anglo-Norman Fitz, a corruption of the Latin filius, a son. "O" was taken to signify that the name was taken from a grandfather or more remote ancestor.

Appended is a list of some of the popular names to be met with every day, showing the transition of the name from the ancient Irish into the present English. In some instances several different names were made from the same Irish name. Generally the change was made into something bearing a similar sound to that of the original.

Mac and O'Gowan into Smith, MacIntyre into Carpenter, MacSpallane into Spencer, MacConry into L'Estrange, MacCrossan into Crosby, O'Reilly into Ridley, O'Donnell into Daniels, O'Sullivan into Silvers and Silvan, MacCarthy into Carter, O'Neil into Neil or Neel. MacConava was corrupted into Conover, and Anglicised into Ford. In the same way O'Marchoan was translated into Ryder and Anglicised Markham. MacConry was corrupted into Conroy, and erroneously translated into King. Rogers is an Anglicisation of the Irish name MacRory. Matthews is the English of MacMahon. MacConan is the original from which has been corrupted Campbell, Campbell, Howell and Caulfield. MacOscar in like manner has been altered into Cosgrove and Costello. MacMurtugh to Mortimer, O'Clery to Clarke and Cleary, O'Clindan to Cunningham. The O'Dorcy's, of Galway, altered their name to D'Arcy and D'Orsay, to give the impression that they were descendants of the Anglo-Norman family of D'Arcy. O'Dulany is the original from which is derived Delany and Delaney.

Many Irish names have been abbreviated, not through any desire on the part of the bearer to hide their origin, but in order to render the names more pronounceable in English. Of these MacEochaidh is only an example and is now known as MacKeogh and Keogh; MacGillpatrick, to Fitzpatrick; MacGillroe, to Gilroy and Kilroy; MacGilla Brighde, to McBride; MacGillatinn, to Linden and Leonard; MacGennis, to Ennis and Guinness; O'Mulryan, to Ryan; MacMurragh, to Kavanagh.

The original of Murphy is O'Murchada, which was Anglicised O'Murchado and latterly Murphy. Connelly and Connolly are derived from O'Connellagh; Clancy is MacFinnchadha in Irish, and was Anglicised MacClancy and then Clancy; the family once owned the barony of Roscommon, in the county of Leitrim. Tuomy comes from Tuair-da-Mhuigh; it was the name of two baronies in King's County, and was afterwards adopted by the family bearing the Irish name O'Maoileoin. Scully is derived from O'Scailaighe. Quinn comes from O'Quinn, a family once numerous and powerful in the County Tyrone. Phelan and Whelan are each corruptions of O'Phollain; O'Toole in Irish is O'Tuathail. Sullivan, with and without the O prefixed, is derived from O'Suilleabhain.

The original Kelly, in Irish O'Ceallaigh, was descended from Aedh-Slainne, monarch of Ireland. His last representative was Congalach O'Kelly, Lord of Bregia, who died in 1292. The family afterwards became scattered, so that there are but few parishes in the country but has some of these Kellys.

It will be a surprise to many to learn that Byron is not an English name, but a corruption of the ancient name of O'Beirne, another corruption of the name being Brinn. O'Brolaghain is the original of Bradley, while in Scotland it is made Briddle. Harrington is an Anglicised form of O'Hearghy and O'Hennessy. O'Honohair was changed to Ivers by the gentry and to Howard by the peasantry. O'Mulligan in the same way has been changed to Molyneux and Baldwin.

O'Honora to Green, O'Rourke to Royle, MacFirris to Forbes, O'Connara to Corbett, O'Grieghan to Graham, O'Heyne to Hinde, Hynes, Hine and Haynes or Hayne. O'Barran to Barrington and Barron, MacHugh to Hughes, MacGillamire to Gilmore, O'Levyne to Lyons, O'Houlihan to Holland, O'Drum to Drummond.

The Irish in early times also had distinctive Christian names and these have also undergone a change similar to those in the surnames, though frequently there have been no cause for the Anglicisation; thus Conmac has been rendered into Charles, though the latter is not a translation and has little similarity in sound. Mahon was turned into Matthew; Teige, into Timothy; Art, into Arthur; Donal, into Daniel; Goron, into Jeffrey; Finghin, into Florence; Forbach, into Frederic; Eoghan, into Owen, and many others have undergone like changes.

No Cancer Among the Jews.

An Albany physician has never known a case of cancer among the Hebrews, and thinks their exemption from the disease is due to abstinence from pork.

A MOTHER'S PRIDE.

How She Tried to Conceal the Condition of Her Drunken Son.

"I am reminded of an incident which I witnessed a few days ago on an outgoing train," says a writer in the Indianapolis News. "A plainly-dressed old woman and a tall, awkward young man, evidently her son, had been in the city, and were going home. There was an uncertainty in the boy's step as he came into the car which indicated that he was considerably intoxicated. They sat down together and he at once began to talk in a loud voice. His words were drizzling nonsense, without a tinge of humor. His mother, however, seemed strangely insensible to her son's disgrace. She laughed freely at the incoherent remarks and replied to them, though in so low a tone that her words were inaudible to the passengers.

"People exchanged surprised glances and began to talk of the unusual scene. Some thought the mother indifferent to her son's condition, and therefore little better than he herself. Others were more charitable and did not believe she realized his condition.

"As I listened, it seemed to me the woman's tones were not natural. There was something that sounded strained and affected in her laugh. Her old bonnet was drawn down so that her face was entirely hidden, and I observed that she kept it so, carefully. Then I began watching her closely, for I wanted to see her features. I felt that a glance at them would assure me whether her cheerfulness was real or feigned.

"The train hurried along, and I began to think my watchfulness was to go unrewarded. The young man was still talking on with his talk, and his mother continued to laugh at his pointless wit. Then the engine whistled, and the couple prepared to get off. I leaned forward and saw the woman fumble about searching for a package. The hand she put out trembled like an aspen. As she rose from the seat she turned her head and I caught a glimpse of her face. Her eyes were dimmed with tears and her furrowed cheeks were wet. The expression of her countenance was so sad that it rises up before me day and night. The poor woman in her pride had preferred to appear unconscious of her son's disgrace, hoping the strangers who witnessed it might not comprehend."

WHAT BERLINERS EAT.

Our German Cousins Said to Mix Horse-Flesh with Their Sausages.

The amount of animal food disposed of in the German capital is such that it is divided equally among the population of the city, it yields an allowance of two and a half pounds of meat a week to every man, woman and child in the place, including infants in arms, members of the Legion of Honor and paupers. In other words, the well-to-do dine on beef, each and every Berliner, irrespective of age, sex or political opinions, is officially credited with the consumption of 141 pounds weight of beef, mutton, veal, pork, lamb and horse-flesh per annum. No fewer than 7,000 horses are slaughtered yearly for the Berlin meat market, their flesh being partly sold as "butcher's meat" in shops specially affected to the retail trade in "pfefferfleisch," which is "smeared up" into sausages, a popular variety of which is hawked "all hot" about the streets late in the evening and during the smaller hours of the early morn. Poor Prussians are much addicted to horse-flesh stewed in a savory sauce; nor do the well-to-do disdain the occasional viand served under its own name. In Germany, Italy and even France the flesh of horses and asses is unquestionably "converted into sausages." Like unto the aged hero of one campaign, we hear a most gruesome anecdote, in vast quantities and imparts to them close texture, rich color, and aromatic flavor, in particular to Brunswick "wurst," "martadella di Bologna," and "saucisson de Lyon." This bulk of the substance to which these delicacies owe their being, however, is pork, fresh or salted; and in all probability the 470,000 pigs that annually pay the debt of nature in tribute to Berlinese appetites find their way to the table in the shape of either sausage or ham; for Prussians rarely eat roast pork or fried bacon, whereas they are never weary of smoked and cured preparations of pig. Besides devouring this porcine host, Berlin stands accountable yearly for the violent death of 127,500 head of cattle, 131,500 calves, and 846,000 sheep, the waste products of minor animals, all of which vanish in due course down her capacious maw.

MARRIED ON A LOG.

Romantic Ceremony by Which Two Lives Were Welded Into One.

The Lithonia (Ga.) Herald tells of a novel and amusing marriage that was solemnized in that city. The contracting parties were both colored, and as the parents of Ella Usher objected to her entering the marriage state the groom, Andrew Williams, whose heart was overflowing with love for the fair Ella, obtained her consent and they ran away. In the afternoon about 3:30 the couple perched themselves on a log by the Academy branch and were there made one. The ceremony was performed by Judge James R. George, N. P., in his beautiful and impressive style. We regret that we are unable to give our readers the ceremony in full, but here is a part of it: "Andrew and Ella, you have met here and perched yourselves upon this log by the side of the calm but frozen waters of this famous and historic Academy branch; under the blue canopy of heaven and surrounded by the grand old trees, which have been shorn of their beautiful foliage by the cold, wintry blasts of winter, you are here surrounded by several distinguished gentlemen—Col. Thomas Lowe, Captain James S. George, 'Little' Ed Bailey and Dave Albert, of Atlanta, and many others—who have come to see you united in holy bonds of wedlock—the grandest, noblest and sublimest state into which people can enter; and may both of your hearts eternally beat as one as you journey down the stream of time, and when you are done with this life may you enter into that realm of bliss where the good dwellers go."

The Training of Children.

The training of children in those matters which mark good-breeding should begin at an early age. A boy five years old is none too young to be taught to take off his hat to a lady, not to pass between people who are talking together, to stand until ladies are seated. All such things are acquired far more easily by early drilling than they can ever be afterwards. Indeed, it is questionable whether anyone who has not been brought up without such training can ever acquire that habitual courtesy which marks the true gentleman or lady.

Cooked apple pomace has been fed to swine with excellent results. The bucolic, paper which makes this announcement very innocently asks: "Have any of our readers tested it in this direction?" The editor of that paper will get quite satisfied if he could have more such questions as this.

5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

THE Carson Appeal, in commenting on an editorial note in a recent issue of the GAZETTE, relative to President Harrison's attitude on the silver question, says: The dispatches alluded to by the GAZETTE were from Democratic sources, and only sent over the wires to make temporary trouble. Harrison is not going to repudiate a single plank in his party platform. A leading Republican of Washington, in an interview recently, said: "I do not believe there is any danger that President Harrison will join the bondholding ring. Some of these dispatches are being sent out for effect only. The purchase of bonds at 29 per cent. premium for the ostensible purpose of relieving the stringency of the money market, when silver could be bought for 30 per cent. discount, would hardly be continued by President Harrison's Administration. The reason why he has not taken the subject up before is the pressure for office. That will now soon be over, and he will consider the question; and there is no doubt that he will take the side of the people who elected him."

Another Senator, when questioned regarding the dispatch, said: "The dispatch is absurd. President Harrison is not going to pursue the policy of Cleveland's Administration with regard to silver. That policy was condemned by the Republican party, and President Harrison, in his letter of acceptance, indorsed that condemnation."

THE decision of the United States Supreme Court to the effect that Notaries Public cannot administer oaths in cases where United States matters are involved promises to lead to a great deal of trouble. During the last four years a large number of cases under the general land laws have been received for patent at the General Land Office. Where final proof was made before the officer designated by law for the purpose, and where no other error was found, they were allowed to go to patent; but when any other informality has crept into a filing, patents will not issue, and it promises to end in endless litigation, as it affects the status of more than 100,000 cases in the mineral division alone.

TRouble has been caused in the higher circles in Omaha by the importation of a Chinese bartender by one Colonel Woods, a gentleman who keeps a saloon. Simultaneously with the appearance of the heathen drink mixer the price of beer was raised to one dollar per schooner to the colored politicians of the city. There was calamity, and plenty of it, on Wednesday night. The colored politicians got it into their heads that there was some connection between the terra cotta colored Gin Sling and the price of beer, and fell upon him hip and thigh and wrecked him all over the bar. Then they left before the policeman arrived there.

It seems that the report of the tenderness displayed by the Emperor of Germany toward the coal miners who have struck all over the empire for better wages for shorter hours were premature. Inaspeech on Wednesday the young man threatened to shoot without remorse all strikers and socialists who persisted in agitation. The speech is not well received in Europe, being considered a little too bloodthirsty even for the Czar of Russia, who manages to govern without a constitution.

Gas Explosion.
BOSTON, May 22.—An explosion of gas occurred in the basement of the Van Ness House this morning. The windows in the hotel were blown out, those in the vicinity smashed, and the lower portion of the hotel wrecked. Several employees were very seriously burned.

Steamship Collision.

MONTREAL, May 22.—The steamships Cynthia and Polynesia collided this morning near Long Point, a few miles east of here. Eight lives are reported lost. The Cynthia was a freighter inward bound from Glasgow. The Polynesia was outward bound with freight and passengers for Liverpool. Immediately after the collision the Cynthia sank in twelve fathoms of water. The survivors from the Cynthia swam ashore. The Polynesia proceeded to Quebec in a damaged condition.

The accident was the result of a misunderstanding of signals for passing at a dangerous curve in the channel. The following is a list of the crew of the Cynthia who lost their lives: Hugh Irving, chief cook; Alex. Nicholas, sailor; W. Vance, Charles McCracken, trimmers; James Low, fireman; James Ferron, boatswain; Charles Blackstock, messenger, and David Young, a stowaway from Glasgow. The blame is laid at the door of the Polynesia, and her officers are much blamed for not stopping to render assistance.

Revision Asked For.

NEW YORK, May 22.—In the Presbyterian General Assembly the Committee on Bills and Overtures reported that the committee received overtures from fifteen Presbyteries, asking for a revision of the confession of faith. The committee considered it best that a request coming from so many Presbyteries should not be ignored, yet thought the Assembly should not take action on the matter at present. They suggested that communication be addressed to each of the Presbyteries in the Assembly, asking if they desired revision, and, if so, to what extent. The matter was made a special order for Friday afternoon.

The report of the Board of Foreign Missions showed the work on the whole to be prosperous, with no unusual obstacles. More money is needed to meet the growing demands. The contributions for the past year fell off over fifty thousand dollars.

Attempted Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—A sensational shooting affair occurred on Montgomery street this morning. Michael Hawkins of the firm of Daily & Hawkins shot at Mrs. Peter Donohue as she was sitting in a carriage on the opposite side of the street. The bullet passed through the carriage and struck a large window in the real estate office of C. H. Street & Co. Mrs. Donohue jumped screaming from the carriage, and ran into a store near by, but, beyond being badly frightened, she escaped uninjured. Hawkins was immediately arrested, but refused to give any reason for the act. He appeared to be under the influence of liquor. Hawkins is a relative of the Donohues, and recently the United States Supreme Court decided a suit between him and Mrs. Donohue in her favor.

In a Tight Place.
NEW YORK, May 22.—Frank Templeman is under arrest, charged with subornation of perjury. The detective who was employed to watch the jurors in the late Aldermanic boodle cases turned in a bill for $5,000. Templeman offered for $1,000 to bring witnesses to prove the bill fraudulent, and that the money was to be divided between Inspector Byrnes and District Attorney Fellows. The fact was discovered that the whole thing was a scheme to be carried through by perjury.

Experimental Arrangement.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The Canadian Pacific has made an experimental arrangement for carrying the Pacific Coast business to this city and other lake points. The first consignment over the new route is a trainload of rice. It left Vancouver, B. C., and came by rail 1,900 miles to Point Arthur, and there it was put on board of a vessel for a run of 850 miles to Chicago. It is now on its way here. It came by steamer from China to Vancouver.

The second race, one mile, Benedictine won, Ernest second, Carrie G. third. Time, 1:47 1/2.
The third race, Gazelle stakes, for three-year-old fillies, mile and a furlong, Gipsy Queen won, Holiday second and Miss Cody third. Time, 2:00 1/2.

In Honor of the Italian King.

BERLIN, May 22.—There was a parade of the Berlin and Spandau Garisons in honor of King Humbert.

O'Brien's Testimony.

LONDON, May 22.—William O'Brien continued his testimony before the Parnell Commission. The League, he said, was founded chiefly to oppose the secret landlord combination. The landlords formed a combination, having a capital of £1,000,000, for the purpose of carrying out evictions by the wholesale, and replacing the evicted tenants with colonies of tenants from other countries. He had been a member of the committee of the League since its organization. He never heard of the suggestion to encourage outrages. The witness attended a convention in America in 1886. He had no connection with dynamite while there. The vast bulk of those who attended the convention were men of the highest standing. He drew a distinction between criminality and illegality. The Irish, he said, have an earnest, healthy repulsion for criminality.

In answer to further questions by the Attorney-General, O'Brien said it was impossible to say what is legal and what is illegal in Ireland. Anything that two resident magistrates say is law. The League certainly tended to lessen outrages, but no League nor human power could prevent crime in such a crisis as that of 1879. He never advised the people to assist the Government in the detection of crime, because that would be accepting a responsibility that the League wholly repudiated. The United Ireland never denounced secret societies. The League wanted nineteen-twentieths of the people in Ireland from such societies.

Damaging Frost.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 22.—A number of towns in central and southern Minnesota report a hard frost this morning, doing damage to vegetation.

MILWAUKEE, May 22.—Dispatches from the interior of the State indicate that garden truck and tender shoots of early corn were severely nipped by frost last night. Ice one eighth to one-quarter of an inch was formed. It is feared that the strawberry crop in St. Croix and Pierce counties is a total loss.

The case of the State against Sam Yip (Jap.) for enticing little girls into a laundry for immoral purposes was called in the municipal court this morning. The jury is being impaneled.

Sensational Divorce Case.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The sensational divorce case in which Leslie Carter has charged his wife with adultery and she charges him with unmentionable crimes towards her was concluded this morning, the jury finding the woman guilty as charged and the husband not guilty. The case was full of sensationalism, mostly to the discredit of Mrs. Carter, linking her name in various ways with Kyrle Bellaw, an actor; Mr. Constable, a New York merchant; her physician and others, and only partially accounting for the vast sums of money which Mrs. Carter spent in Europe.

After the Bucket Shops.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The Board of Trade has given notice that its quotations will be given to members only after the close of this month. This action is brought by a fight with the bucket shops. This includes all commercial exchanges of the country. Intelligence has been received from the New York Produce Exchange that it considers this a good opportunity to send its quotations everywhere, in the hope of supplying Chicago as the ruling market of the country for grain of all sorts.

WANTS A FARM.

And is Drinking a Good Patch of Land Every Month.

Bob Burdette writes as follows: My homeless friend with the chromatic nose, while you are stirring up the sugar in a ten cent glass of gin let me give you a fact to wash down with it. You say you have longed for years for the free, independent life of a farmer, but have never been able to get enough money together to buy a farm. But this is just where you are mistaken. For several years you have been drinking an improved yard at the rate of 100 square feet at a gulp. If you doubt this statement, figure it out yourself. An acre of land, contains 43,560 square feet. Estimating for convenience the land at $43.50 per acre, you will see that it brings the land to just one mill per square foot, one cent for ten square feet. Now pour down the fiery dose and imagine you are swallowing a strawberry patch. Call in five of your friends and then gulp down that 500-foot garden. Get on a prolonged spree some day and see how long a time it requires to swallow a pasture large enough to feed a cow. Put down that glass of gin; there's dirt in it—100 feet of good rich dirt, worth $43.50 per acre.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT.

Liberal Use of the Birch in the Boston Schools.

No less than 18,664 floggings were administered to boys in the public schools of Boston during the last year. The average attendance of boys was 29,580. Of these 18,664 castigations 6,896 were inflicted upon little children in the primary schools, the total number of whom was 13,382. Girls are not subjected to the discipline of the rod in Boston schools, and it is not stated whether the boys are made to suffer for them vicariously or not. At any rate, it is the opinion of School Superintendent Seaver that the boys are compelled to endure a great deal too much corporal punishment, and he discusses the subject with vigorous indignation in his annual report. The resorts to this kind of punishment, he says, are "excessive, unreasonable and injurious, amounting, in fact, to a gross abuse." And the Superintendent is unquestionably right, but the Boston Board thinks it incurs considerable risk through the frank exposure made by him; for it appears that previous protests have been followed by sharp persecution of those who ventured to make them, on the part of the teachers inculcated. It seems, therefore, that the whipping of children is regarded by some, at least, of the teachers as an enjoyable privilege, which ought not to be surrendered or abated without a struggle for its maintenance. It would be interesting to see whether Boston is typical of other cities in this respect. Without a complete knowledge of all the facts, it is our belief, however, that corporal punishment as a means of stimulating scholars to study is falling into disuse, and that milder but more effectual methods are taking its place, except in aggravated cases. But it is a curious development of the times that Boston, the home of culture and pronounced estheticism, should go on record as possessing such cruel schoolroom animus.

Humboldt's Former County Seat.

The Winnemucca Silver State says: County Assessor Riley, who has been to Unionville on official business, says the place is a mass of bloom and verdure. The alfalfa fields are blossoming, vegetables of all kinds are far advanced toward maturity and the trees are laden with fruit. The town which at one time exhibited all the bustle and activity incident to a lively mining camp, is now quiet as a farm and the canyon from mouth to head is developed in agricultural pursuits.

A Sea Sick Passenger.

On the ocean, cares little about a storm. He is positively indifferent whether he is washed overboard or not. But, set right by a wine glass full of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, he feels renewed interest in his personal safety. This fine corrective neutralizes in brackish water—often compulsorily drunk on shipboard, to the grievous detriment of health—the pernicious impurities which give rise to disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. The mariner, the traveler, the Western pioneer and miner, the Bitters is invaluable as a means of protection against malaria, which seeds are latent in the air and water. To the effect of overwork, mental or manual, it is a most reliable antidote, and a most reliable remedy for nervousness, and affords great and speedy relief and vigor.

Great Announcement.

I now have in my employ eight tailors, and have work enough for as many more. I have adopted prices that none can compare with. I am making suits to order for $25, pants for $7, and all other goods in my store I will sell cheap for cash to make room for new goods, which I receive once a week. I have made arrangements with my agents in London and Paris, who furnish me with the latest patterns and lowest prices. I therefore give the public all these advantages. I respectfully invite my customers and the public in general to call and secure a bargain at my establishment.

An Expression of Delight.

"About a week ago," says a Los Angeles, Cal., druggist, "a Chinaman came in with a lame shoulder. I sold him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and guaranteed that it would cure him. He came in again last night, and as soon as he got inside the door began to swing his arms over his head like an Indian club swinger. I thought the balm had a fit, but he finally stopped to say: 'Medicine verry fine, verry fine; all same make me feel plenty good.' Chamberlain's Pain Balm is without an equal for sprains, rheumatism, aches, pains or lame backs. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker."

 Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism, but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert of New Brunswick, Ill.: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right to-day, and I would urge on everyone who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." IRRIGATING SCHEME.

Something Tangible in the Way of Water Storage.

A company to be known as the Steamboat and Washoe Lake Canal Company has been recently organized by B. G. Clow, Irwin Crane, W. D. Hardin, R. S. Gammon, R. H. Ball and others, who are to carry by a large ditch the winter surplus of water in Galena creek and White's and Thomas' canyons into lower Washoe lake, at the lower end of which a dam of solid stone masonry is to be erected, eight feet high and about forty feet long. As there is but little fall to this part of the valley, this dam will set the water back for a distance of at least two miles. Theodore Winters, who owns the land on the west side of the proposed reservoir, much of which will be flooded, has generously allowed this company to not only erect the dam, but to dig a ditch across his lands of sufficient capacity to carry all waste water of the above-mentioned canyons and creeks.

Twelve years ago Surveyor-General Hatch made a survey of the above-named water courses, and learned that they would furnish 6,000 inches of water during the irrigating season. This amount, with the natural flow of the other streams, will afford water sufficient to irrigate for four and a half months of the year, 14,000 acres. Messrs. Hardin, Crane and Ball were elected Trustees of this company, and James Burke will have charge of the work of ditching and dam building. He is in town to-day looking up men and purchasing the necessary material for an immediate commencement of the work.

WATER COMMISSIONERS.

They Meet, Organize and Adjourn to Confer with Senator Stewart.

The Board of Water Commissioners, consisting of Senator Williams of Ormsby, J. B. Bradley of Elko, Assemblyman Blakeslee of Humboldt and Hon. H. Springmeyer of Douglas, met yesterday at the State Capital and organized by the election of Senator Williams as Chairman and Judge T. D. Edwards as Secretary.

The Secretary was instructed to correspond with Senator W. M. Stewart to learn if possible when the water survey to be made by the general government will be commenced, and the Board adjourned to meet again at the call of the Chairman, on receipt of the above information. It is understood that the survey already commenced and to be continued by the federal government will be of a character to be of great assistance to our State Board.

Mr. Bradley said he was opposed to doing anything until he had inspected the ground and convinced himself that the people would be benefitted to the extent of the proposed expenditure. The rest of the Commissioners seemed to agree with Mr. Bradley, and the Commission adjourned without accomplishing anything further than is contained in the above.

RENO PROSPECTS.

A Company About to Organize With a Capital of $500,000 to Make This a Distributing Point for the North and South.

Steps are being taken to organize a company with a capital of $500,000 to put up a building and otherwise provide for making this a distributing point for all the northern and southern country. It is said that the railroad will give us the same rate from the East that they now charge to Sacramento and San Francisco in carload lots, thus doing away with local rates back. It is more than likely that the arrangement will be made, and that some time in the near future we shall have the thing under full headway. This is a step that means much to Reno and her future, and the men who have the matter in charge are men of wealth and influence and will use every exertion to carry out the plans as laid down.

Royal Blood.

The young Princess of the Hawaiian Islands, who falls heir to the throne as soon as her uncle, King Kalakaua, kicks the bucket, and suite passed East this morning. The young lady is on her way to England, where she goes to be educated. Her party were by no means distinguished looking as they were dressed in very ordinary costumes that looked decidedly seedy. G. Woodford, a typical Englisher, who had crowded himself into the Princess' good graces, was of the party. He wore a gold and blue skull cap, had sore eyes and looked as if he had been on a protracted spree. In answer to the GAZETTE reporter's inquiries as to who the party was, said: "By the bloody 'ell I cannot spell it for you, sir; the name has about thirty letters."

Going East.

Tommy Keating is going East with his horse, Sensation, in company with Haggins' stable, early in June. Sensation will trot at Cleveland, Buffalo, the Hatten (Mass.) Driving Park and Oak Driving Park of Hartford, Conn., besides taking in the entire Eastern circuit. Mr. Keating says that unless he sells his horse he will be back here in time to take in the State Fair.

Make Your Application.

All stockholders desiring loans in the Minneapolis Building and Loan Association can have their application acted upon promptly by calling at the company's office in Reno. Mr. Thompson informs the GAZETTE that any information desired can be obtained at his office.

Another New Residence.

E. Hancock and H. D. Sellers have taken the contract for the erection of S. J. Hodgkinson's new dwelling on Center street. For many months Samuel has been showing symptoms of a complaint which nothing but a neat little cottage, etc., can cure.

More Homes on the South Side.

Hon. Thomas Fitch is negotiating with Mr. Thompson for three and a half lots just east of A. H. Manning's and west of the ground he already owns. If the purchase is made Mr. Fitch will immediately commence the construction of a fine residence.

For Coughs and throat troubles use "Brown's Bronchial Troches." They stop an attack of any asthma cough very promptly. —C. Fitch, Gardnerville, Ohio.

ADVENTIST CAMP-MEETING.

A Number of Elders Willing to Administer Comfort to All Who Attend.

The Seventh-day Adventists of Nevada are preparing to hold another of their annual camp-meetings in Reno. They have chosen the ground just north of their church as a site, and have pitched a tent 45x55 feet to be used as a pavilion for general services.

A number of other tents have been prepared for those who live at a distance and wish to camp on the ground. One tent has been fitted for a restaurant, and in this Mrs. U. C. McClure of Oakland will conduct her school of hygienic cookery. Any one interested in this subject is cordially invited to attend the sessions, which will be held each afternoon from 4 to 5:30.

Elder U. C. McClure of Oakland, Elder J. H. Cook of Kentucky and Elder Wm. CAPTAIN COULTER KILLED.

Struck by a Railroad Engine at Winslow, N. M.
 Last evening's Carson Tribune contains the following: The following dispatch was received this morning at this office:

BUTTE, M. T., May 20.
 Captain J. E. Coulter was killed this evening by being struck by an engine on the Montana Central Railroad, at Winslow, near Helena.

MAX ARONSON.
 Captain Coulter was Deputy Warden of the State Prison under the Bell regime, and removed to Montana with his family about four years ago. The dispatch gives no particulars, but it is supposed he was running on the road, as he was an engineer by occupation.

He was well known in this State from his prominence in military and political circles, and his many friends will be pained to learn of his sudden death.

Advice to Mothers.
 Mrs. Winslow's Sore Throat Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. 25 cents a bottle. J. W. C.

Looks Like a Murder.
 The Adin, Modoc county, Cal., Argus of the 16th inst. says: In our last issue we mentioned the killing of a boy at Lakeview by his playmates. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of "death caused by an enlargement of the heart from fright or abuse." The parents were not satisfied with the verdict, however, and had a post mortem examination of the body, which resulted in finding that the boy had three ribs of the left side broken, and other internal injuries. The three youthful murderers have been arrested and are awaiting the action of the Grand Jury. It seems to us a clear case of murder.

California Glacier.
 The Homer (Cal.) Index says: It is stated by parties who have recently visited the spot that the great glacier on the northern flank of Mount Lyell has moved at least ten feet within a year. Last May they built two monuments of rocks, five feet high, one being placed at the edge of the ice, the other at a distance of fifteen feet. The upper monument has disappeared and the lower one is but five feet from the ice. Accurate measurements from several permanent points show conclusively that the glacial movement northward has been considerable all along the line.

FACES OF CRIMINALS.

Inspector Byrnes Discards the Science of Physiognomy.

What Features Disclose—How to Study the Eyes—Characteristics of the Mouth Jaws and Ears—The Deceptive-ness of Appearances.

It is a wise man who knows his own ignorance, observes Inspector Thomas Byrnes, of New York, in the Philadelphia Times.

I am moved to smile when I hear of men who can not have met one-tenth as many people as I have, or under such various and peculiar circumstances, asserting that they understand human nature. I doubt if even one man is thoroughly understood by any body, least of all by himself. For the purposes of my business, long experience in dealing with men and women is of incalculable value; it enables the detective to judge quickly concerning the individuals and acquaints him with many general characteristics of the human family; but after all this valuable experience teaches one most important lesson—that it will never do to jump to conclusions on appearances. It leads the detective to distrust all generalizations, all that so-called science, physiognomy, and to depend solely upon facts and evidence, meaning by the latter term things that will hold good in a law court.

It is true that the cast of a man's features may be of service, and that no detective will examine a supposed criminal with his eyes shut; but physiognomy is merely a factor in the work, not a guide to it. If all men were good, if they grew from infancy to manhood and old age with no artificial influences to bend their natures, physiognomy might be reduced to an exact science. I do not assert that it could, but admit that it might. In the complex civilization of today it never can be. For education modifies the lines of the face to a remarkable degree. The growth of intelligence imparts not only a new, softened expression to the face, but actually changes its appearance to an extent that will readily throw the rules of physiognomy into confusion. Not that a crooked nose may become straight, or a large mouth small; but wise habits and the desire to appear well in the world may erase the ugly, vice-born wrinkles about the eyes and the corners of the mouth, and effect other changes of a similar nature.

While the lines may be modified and the nature refined, the brutal or criminal tendencies are not, unhappily, eradicated. They may lie dormant throughout a lifetime, but they may break out, if the provocation arises, at any moment. If this happens the criminal is a hard case for the detective. His education has taught him some things that his less fortunate brother in the dives can not make available. It sometimes happens that vicious tendencies remain dormant for generations, during which the lines of a man's face have been subject to constant improvement. In cases, however, when a boy of vicious parentage grows up in vicious surroundings, where his animal nature is given full swing, he grows to manhood a marked criminal and can be picked out at sight. Just what direction his nature takes, however, whether to burglary, swindling, murder, licentiousness or petty thieving, can not be determined with accuracy at a glance.

I have said that physiognomy may be regarded as a factor in criminal detecting.
 Evidently then it must be applied with caution,
 and never be depended on without evidence.
 It is a good plan to get evidence first and then back it up, if you like the diversion, with an analysis of the features of the criminal. In dealing with suspects I try to get hints of their character by observing the mouth, the eyes, jaws and ears. From the mouth a fair estimate may be obtained of the subject's character as to determination or weak will power, brute courage or timidity, chastity or licentious-ness, generosity or selfishness, cruelty or kindness.

It will be observed that this does not go so far as to make a suspect flatly a criminal or honest man; it simply suggests his tendencies. In seeking to determine whether a person is telling the truth I depend a good deal upon the eyes; not, however, upon their general appearance, for the most evil-eyed person in the world may tell the truth at times, and some of the best of men may prevaricate upon occasions of great temptation. It is rather the action of the eyes that tells the secret. I try to place the person who is in question so that the light shines fully into his face. Then I can see the pupils, and if they waver or contract more than the light would call for I feel pretty confident that I am dealing with a liar. It is practically impossible to conceal the pupil.
 One whose eyes do not waver when he is deceiving a detective usually betrays himself by the very effort, which gives to his face an appearance of over-confidence, and his assumption of innocent candor becomes a calm stare.

There is not a great deal to be learned from an inspection of the jaws and ears, but I have noticed that heavy, wide jaws usually go with small ears that lie close to the head.
 Criminals of this class are generally desperate characters, hard headed, who are little amenable to reason, and appreciate only the argument of force. On the other hand, men with lantern jaws and floppy ears present little difficulty.

A striking proof of the uncertainty of physiognomy in determining a man's character, may be seen at a glance at the pictures in the gallery in this city. Three pictures were placed before a visitor one day. He knew from the circumstances that they were criminals. One he fixed upon unhesitatingly as a brute, another as a swindler, and the third looked so much like a benevolent clergyman that the visitor disliked to rate him any where, but finally put him down as a thief.

He might have a mania for stealing books from libraries," said the visitor, apologetically.

Turning to the backs of the photographs the visitor read the summarized records of the three. The "murderer's" worst crime had been the snatching of money from a lady's hand as she was carelessly displaying it in the street; the "swindler" had committed an atrocious murder, and the benevolent-looking "thief" was the keeper of an infamous resort. And the visitor thought he had something about physiognomy and human nature, too.

Not to Be Read by Smokers.

Dr. Lyman reports through the New York Medical Journal some very accurate investigations concerning the use of tobacco.
 An observation of thirty-eight boys of all classes of society and of average health, who had been using tobacco for from two months to two years, twenty-seven showed serious injury to the constitution and checked physical development. Thirty-two showed damage done to the heart's action, dis-ordered digestion and a craving for alcohol.
 Thirteen had intermittency of the pulse and one had consumption. After the abandonment of tobacco, within six months one-half were free from all the above symptoms and the remainder were cured by the end of the year. The Maoris are given as an instance of the evil resulting from tobacco. This race was, when first discovered, the finest developed of any tribe on the Pacific. It is now decimated in numbers and degenerate in type. This is said to be owing to their insatiable fondness for tobacco.

TAMING A HUSBAND.

The Sarcastic Advice of a Woman Who Has Had Three of Them.

Certainly—you can't scold amiss, my dear woman, exclaims a female contributor in the New York Ledger. If he hasn't done "this or that," he has probably done something else. Scolding clears the domestic atmosphere; you have to keep up a perpetual cannonading, or there will be a revolt.
 Husbands get terribly unmanageable, sometimes unless they are kept up to the mark.
 Don't lose any time about it either. Once let a man hoist the flag of independence, and unless you haul it down for him in double quick time you're a lost woman.
 Once allow him to suppose that he's master of the house, and the first you know it will be: "Minnie, bring me a match for my cigar, that's a dear," or, "Minnie, just look for my cravat, will you, or even, "Minnie, I've brought Jones and Howard home to dinner; couldn't help asking em. You needn't make any extra parade, but just get a few oysters, or a lobster or something!" That's the way you'll be victimized. Once begin waiting on him, and you'll have business for the rest of your life. Put him down, and keep him there.

How?"
 That's a pretty question to ask. The "hows" are as thick as mosquitoes on an August evening. Blame him for every thing he does; make up your mind not to be satisfied under any circumstance whatever.
 If it rains, blame him because the sun doesn't shine; if he puts his newspaper on one corner of the mantel-piece, scold him because it didn't go to the other; if he laughs above his breath, put your hands up to your ears, and ask him "if he supposes you were made without nerves!" If he frowns, call him an ill-natured brute.

If he brings home tickets for the opera, tell him you had set your heart on going to the theater. If he talks to a lady, turn jealous, go into hysterics; if he joins a knot of gentlemen, tell him "it's very plain that his poor wife's society has no longer any charms for him." If he invites friends to your house, tell him that "you don't keep a hotel," if he doesn't invite them, tell him he is an unsocial bear, who would like to keep you alone the whole time. If he has a cold in his head, deluge the whole house with soap-and-water and scrub-brushes; if he suffers from toothache, insist on having every window in the room open, on account of "fresh air." If he is fond of roast turkey, see that cold pork is on the table instead; if he likes coffee, discover, all of a sudden, that he is not healthy, and substitute milk and water!

Don't give him his own way in any one particular—contradict him on all occasions —tread on his toes whenever he is going to say any thing, and then fret at him for being "silent and sulky." Never allow him to wear his best coat—put him on a diet of one shirt a week—keep the "change" and deal it out to him by the half dime—groan at his extravagance whenever he buys a new hat, and hunt in all his pockets for strong cigars, champagne cork, or shells, or any such silent witnesses to his depravity.

Why, if you didn't keep up this constant system of intimidation, he might actually be impudent enough to chuck you on the chin, or pull your curls, or even kiss you once in awhile. He might keep dinner waiting half a minute; he might steal one of your little handkerchiefs out of the bureau drawer when he couldn't find his own yellow border handkerchief; he might elevate his feet on the parlor mantle; he might imagine home was a place to enjoy himself in; he might be insane enough to suppose that a wife liked to wait on her husband!

There is no telling what he might not

or say or think if he were not judiciously snubbed.

Just follow up this system, however, and you'll be pretty sure to take the starch out of him. Don't get discouraged if he is a little stiff and "set in his way" at first;
 two or three months of the above discipline will make him as limp as an old dish-rag.
 You may be obliged to fight one or two pitched battles, but that's of no consequence. You have always one great resort —if the day is going against you, turn on the tears! He can't go sniveling about the house with red eyes and swollen nose—you can't! Tears will subdue a man when the rest of the feminine artillery won't! Try it just once, and see!

That's the way to break them in, girls!

No failure warranted to cure the worst cases—no better receipt in the whole coun-til pharmacopoeia for transforming a high-spirited young fellow into a meek, umbrella-carrying, bill-paying, cradle-rocking machine who knows his "place," and never speaks unless his wife says he may.
